Class Prophecy

NOTES FROM OUR LITTLE RED BOOK Good evening, radio andience! Here's that man again with his Little Red Book, spotlighting for you the news of the week of Jannary 25, 1947!

LONDON, ENGLAND Mr. Ben Blenner left for Paris Tuesday to introduce one of his famous Ladies' Aid Bureaus. Several years ago, Mr. Blenner originated the idea of providing college educated young men with social background as male escorts for the feminine tourists of New York. Mr. Blenner is ably assisted by Mr. Archie Relm and Mr. Virgil Graff. (Watch out, Ben, fifty million Frenchmen can't be wrong!)

ATLANTIC CITY—BOARD WALK—After a close decision, jndges crowned Lorraine Gale Wyman, America's 1947 "Venus." Betty Reiling placed second and Gladys Johnson ran a close third. Judges were Clande Adams. Commander-in-Chief of the Street Cleaning department, Jack Scriven, Flapjack Flipper King of the sixteen surrounding counties, and Jack Frazier, noted inventor of the zipper for bananas.

Miss Roe stated that it was her desire "to begin where Carrie Nation left off,"

Flash! BOMBAY, INDIA—All the natives turned out this evening (or is it morning over there) to greet "Fritz" Luntsford on his "Around the World on a Scooter" jaunt. There he will be the honored guest of Missionary Ray Forrester and his wife, the former Miss

Gerry Stenberg, Mr. Luntsford expects to reach Peking within three or four days, (He'll have to do some scooting!)

TERRE HAUTE, INDIANA — Milton Maniatis was proclaimed 1947 tiddle-dy-winks clampion of the world after a strennous battle with runner-np, Don Bean. The contest was held last Tursday in the town square under the anspices of Olson and Ferrante, up and coming tiddle-dy-winks manufacturers. Judges, Elmer Harris and Harry Pierce, stated that it was one of the most thrilling battles they had ever witnessed.

MIAMI, FLORIDA—Admiral George Migliuri and his party were given a rousing welcome this morning as they returned from their hazardous expedition to Timbuctoo. Mayor Jack Love presented to Admiral Migliuri and his chief pilot, Theron Neville, the keys to the city as a token of appreciation for the great work which they had done. ## Last Will and Testament

"Barbarons" says the faculty! "Intelligent" say the seniors! (They hope) "Lucky for you" the following is the final group of wishes of the January, 1937 graduating class. "Watch the seniors go by!"

Lorraine Wyman leaves her sophisticated boredom to the senior class for future use.

And to the dignified juniors goes Harold Thompson's superb bearing of person.

The conceit of the sophomore class will be carried on in memory of the "late" Jack Love. Elsie Hultgren leaves her laughter and naivete to the carefree freshmen.

Eugenia Heath and Woody Nord leave their rare ability to make the halls seem like Coenr d'Alene lake in the moonlight to that cute little couple who have been seen holding hands, Ella Ruth McLellan and John Dullanty.

Betty Stuart reluctantly surrenders her gavel, together with her infectious grin, to her up-and-coming successor.

Lois Thomas, who reads many books,

Gives to Frank Curran this "love" for his looks.

However sad and touching Frank Crowe must forsake his "hall-running." Carry on, Mr. Buckley.

The senior secretarial students grapt what is left of Mr. Strieter (after we have driven him "nuts") to the future struggling stenographers.

Princess Dorothy Patz deserts her book, "Ten Easy Lessons on Romance" for Hellen Peterson's use, Harold Olsen duly ascribes to Harry Treffry the fighting ability which Harold seems to have cultivated recently.

From our honorable president, Jack Frazier, we leave

A life-like photo so the girls won't grieve.

Ben Blenber's gift of gab is abandoned to Stanley Stevens who, with it, will never suffer for lack of words.

Clarence Howard bequeaths his definite ideas of government to Billy Somers who seems not to know there is such a thing,

The seniors sobbingly select the senior B's to satisfy the students' seemingly serious search (?) for swimming at school.

Jim Hale who's wasted hours without number Grants to Tom Meenach more sleep and more slumber.

By special request Ha Morgan wishes to endow one Marie Gilliland with her knack of rating handsome members of the male sex.

Since Charline Jydstrup won't have typing and shorthand to make her "fly into fits of rage" after graduation, she bestows her ability to Helen McLendon to improve upon. (Ye poor mortals who have taken two years of these subjects will, without question, understand.)

Fred Luntsford leaves bis dear-hunting license to Bob Chatterton. Or does Bob need it?

Ever smiling and happy Evelyn Majer entrusts ber radiant personality with the seriousminded Ethel Van Liew.

Ray Forrester and Virgil Graff (among others) leave to J. Wesley Taylor a serious vacancy in the basketball squad.

To Sammy Contos who'd like to be funny Goes curly blonde hair from Gladys Johnson, our "honcy,"

To those (shall we say fortunate?) humans who are left at the mercies of the commercial course we, the seniors, find it in our hearts to convey our deepest condolepees.

Bonnie Connor relinquishes her "childhood" desire to be a great Helen Hayes to Alice Hunt to fulfill.

As Evelyn Carlson will no longer need to labor unceasingly for her four A's, she states that Mildred McDowell may have that privilege.

Rod Hutchison leaves his pronounced luck in betting to Van Johnston who, we understand, will accept it gladly.

And to the incoming senior A's the grads do bequeath the broad shoulders of warrior Jim Ferguson to bear all their woes and cares.

Under the statutes of dear old N. C. we hereby sign off, leaving finally a fond fare-theewell to you who have made our past four years our happiest ones.

SIGNED AND SEALED,

MARY ELAINE FRANCIS, Chairman LEAH CABBAGE ARCHIE REHN

Class History

Twas in the winter of '33 When first we entered dear N. C. Four years of work has been our fate; Four more, if we don't graduate.

Now that we have disposed of our poetic inclinations, we'll give our talents to the more serious business of writing the history of our class.

During our first year, when we were known by the ignoble name of "frosh," we spent much of our time dodging the merciless "sophs" and wishing that we were high and mighty seniors. It was then that we realized what small regard the upperclassmen hold for the freshmen.

The next year our numbers were enlarged by our Havermale brethren. With our advancement from the ranks of the yearlings, we began to put on airs which we thought would be more suitable to our newly gained prestige.

By the time we were juniors, most of us had joined a club or some other school organization. Many were already prominent in sports. Jim Ferguson was all-city guard that year while Ray Forrester was making a name for himself in basketball.

January, nineteen hundred and thirty-six—at last, we were seniors! In the spring our class officers were: Jack Frazier, president; Lois McCannon, vice president; Leah Cabbage, secretary; and Bill Maniatis, treasurer.

The fall semester brought another election in which the office of president was again filled by Jack Frazier. The other positions were ably taken care of by Evelyn Carlson, vice president; Leah Cabbage, secretary; Virgil Graff, treasurer; and Clarence Howard, class orator. Jack Scriven was chosen yell leader in a close race with Rod Hutchinson. Under these capable leaders, our class set forth in its last semester to uphold the noteworthy examples set by the former classes.

The Federation and the League, headed by two of our fellow classmates, Ray Forrester and Betty Stuart, respectively, continued to be of much service to the students of North Central. These organizations sponsored many worthy projects during the semester.

One of the best News in the history of our school has been published under the direction of Jack Frazier, editor in chief. Students of North Central have shown their appreciation for having such an outstanding school paper by supporting it to their utmost.

This issue of the yearbook was produced through the tircless efforts and cooperative spirit of the Tamarack staff, composed of Betty Stuart, editor; Jack Frazier and Helena Hamilton, associate editors and special student committees.

Betty Reiling led the class in scholarship having the highest scholastic record.

Finally, December the 4th arrived, bringing with it the annual operetta which this time was entitled "Hollywood Bonnd," starring Willard Morgareidge and Dorothy Tesch on the first night and Howard Smith and Jean Cleave on the following night.

The honor of being football princess during Color week was accorded to charming Dorothy Patz.

The senior prom which proved to be a tremendous success had for its committee: Jack Frazier, Jack Love, Ray Forrester, Evelyn Carlson, Gladys Johnson and Dorothy Patz

This completes the narrative of our class; and as we make ready to journey forth in the world, armed with our hard-won knowledge, we know that we shall often look back with longing to our carefree, happy-go-lucky days at North Central high.

GERALD KIMBALL CHARLES HORN

And dances,
Of wagon trains
And pioneer graves:

Principal's Message

To January, Nineteen Hundred Thirty-seven Graduates:

It is my great personal loss that so many of you have gone through school, and are now leaving and making it less probable that I can ever become better acquainted with you than I am now.

Perhaps I have indirectly added to your advantages, but you as individuals and as a class have given to me and to the school much in return. Your training here, your reputations for having right attitudes and wanting to go on living straight, concerning yourselves with the happiness of those around you—all make up something very definite and quite priceless to the school and to us who remain here. Your successes are a part of any which we can claim,

May you go far and live well. And may the bending road ahead bring you back sometimes to the halls of North Central.

> Sincerely yours, F. G. KENNEDY

AFTER SCHOOL, WHAT?

Seniors, what lies ahead of us now? Is it college or a profession or a trade? Whichever it is, we will soon learn of what value our high school education has been. Some of us, because of our applied diligence throughout school, will become successes in whatever field we undertake. Others, because of neglected studies and non-participation in activities, will just as surely have a harder trail to follow.

Of the two courses open to each of us for choice, college is probably the more profitable. Unfortunately, many of us are unable to realize such an ambition. College provides an opportunity for specialization in definite courses which we are unable to get in the high school. The only other educational opportunities we have are the trade and business schools, which, because of financial reasons, are open to only a certain group. The value of college is unestimable to those who take full advantage of their opportunities, but to some it spells a wasted four years.

The other alternative is obtaining a position of some kind. The lack of a higher education deprives one of many advantages which are required for some positions, but is gives one a start of four years in business circles over the college student. If one goes directly into the business world from high school, his education becomes doubly important, since he is handicapped by the lack of a college course.

High school should afford no source of regret to any graduate, but if any is occasioned, it will be from the knowledge of wasted time and opportunities.

"THERE'S A SONG IN THE AIR—"

"There's a song in the air in the Great Northwest

And a thousand yet unsung-"

"God's country" is a good definition for the Great Northwest, for we do have a song in the air and a spirit of freedom and independence. People who have traveled in the East often contrast the friendliness and cordiality of Westerners with the reserve of those who live in the Eastern part of the country.

We are fortunate that we live in a part of the country where there are so many natural resources—mines, timber and water power waiting to be developed.

Cities of the Northwest are not so large and crowded that children of the poorer classes do not know what a real cow looks like. In a few minutes drive we can get away from the city and enjoy the natural beauty of the country.

We do not have to depend on the city for recreation; there are lakes for water sports in the summer and skating in the winter, hills for skiing and tobogganing, rivers and streams for fishing and tennis courts and golf courses available to everyone.

NORTH CENTRAL

As the tide of time rolls onward, January nineteen hundred and thirty seven finds 169 students ready to join that vast number of those persons who have left the portals of North Central—forever. Twice every year hundreds of young men and women are sent forth prepared to take their places among ranks of young American citizens.

Hereafter it will be, for the most part, our own decisions which govern our actions in the new fields we are setting out to conquer. May it be that high school has supplied us with enough worthwhile knowledge upon which we may wisely and profitably base these decisions.

Of any four years in the span of life there are probably none more important than those which are spent in secondary education, usually between the ages of fourteen and eighteen years. It is in these years that we are changing from boys and girls to young men and women. At this time impressions are most easily made and stay with us the longest.

Most of our standards are formed at this time and our surroundings and our activities at school bear a mighty influence on their formation. The minds of each of us has been developing into that of an adult, and we are capable of making decisions between right and wrong.

In all these matters and in those we contact further along the way, may what we've learned at North Central be forever remembered and prove of benefit in all that we do.

Taggart's River

FIRST PHIZE STORY

By Virginia Kelsey

Jerry Randolph, that's what they call me. Sometimes it's Jerry; other times it's just plain went over mine, ten times and more. Randolph, All accordin' to whether folks like me or not. Most of 'em do, tho' there's some that refer to me as a tramp; well, I am a tramp, a high class tramp. Say I've been tramping all over and up and down the Columbia River for more than ten years. Seems like I've been tramping ever since that ole river started running. Fellow once asked me if I'd come up to his place in Scattle and do his gardenin' for him, but I sure puts him straight quick enough. Why, I couldn't leave Columbia. What would I do when I felt kinda lonely and wanted someone to talk to? Couldn't go down to that river and come up feeling like a new man. That's what I do. A million times I've done it and a million times more I'm goin' to do it.

I've made lots of friends along my river, but the one I'll always hold more dear than anyone is Taggart. Now, Taggart's a half breed, but I aint ashamed of it. I've slept with him, eaten with him, jest like my own kin. Some folks wouldn't do it. Pride, that's what they ealls it, but sometimes when you see a feller needs somebody to listen and understand him, it shore gets ya, right in the heart. That's where Tag got me, first off and always. Now, Taggart weren't handsome. He had a stony face jest like an Injun, but there was somethin' different in that face, kinda beautiful somethin'. Ya see, Tag couldn't walk, never had been able to; maybe that's why I always seemed to look up to him. It weren't a pity I felt for him; it was respect,

He lived in a little shack down the river apiece. There were three families livin' there, making fourteen in all. Fourteen in that dirty hovel. The place stunk. I know, I was in there once and jest about keeled over from the smell. Dead fish, lord how that gets you. Tag called it the Devil's Place, and he was right. Maybe it was the white-blood in him that made him hate dirt. Or maybe it was the Injun blood. To tell the truth, I believe it was the last. No matter what it was, it was home to Taggart, and I know the thought of leavin' the Columia never came into his mind. I loved Tag so; cnz his love for the Columbia came up and

Well, anyway, I remember the day I came to the shack where Taggart lived. It was beautiful; the river shone in the sunlight, ran smoothly like the quiet ticking of a clock in the night. I've heard it said that the Columbia was the bluest of all rivers in the world, I could swear to that. It is. It always reminds me of an old lady, lifting her blue skirts and walking proudly away. On the other side of the river, there's a hunch of rocks. And if you've ever seen them rocks and that river in the sunset, you've seen heaven. The rocks turn a dark yellow, and brown, 'n gold. The river seems to git bluer yet, and if you've ever seen that then you know why I'll never leave my river. Maybe you folks think I'm an ole rambler, but whenever I git started on Columbia, nothin' stops me.

As I was saying, those were the kind of days I loved, loved to watch the river, the sun, the rocks. Everything was gorgeous. Well, it should have been, for it was the beginning of the time when me and Tag would live like brothers. We'd find a place on the rocks, where Tag could get up and down easy with his chair, I got Tag that chair when I first knew him. He was so happy to think that he could get out of that shack, that he cried, I guess I cried too. So, as we was sitting on the rocks, I'd tell Tag all about the Christ and I never had a better listener.

He always wanted to hear about the time Jesus walked on the water. Made him think of being able to walk some day. Made me happy jest to watch his face, as I told the story, His cyes 'd get big, the big face would change wonderfully.

Well, always after a week was over, I started on my way agin. Me'n Tag shook hands, 'n I had it hard to hide the tears as Tag'd crinkle his nose and say "Goodbye brother." Then he'd sit and watch me walk down the road.

One time a month later I come back. Walked down the little hill and stopped fore the shack. Door was hangin' loose, flies buzzed around my head, but most of all 1 didn't see all them little Injuns kids playing around. The other shacks were still there and they had people in 'em, but this shack was empty. Thinkin' maybe Taggart was by the river, I walked down there, but no Tag. So I hobbles over to Clore's house. Clore was a neighboring Injun,

He told me the family had left about two weeks ago. What about Tag, I asks him. "Tag? Oh, he dead." He said them last fightin' words in the smoothest voice, and it made me good 'n mad. I told him he'd better be careful how he talked about Tag. But if you know Injuns; he just looked at me, as if I was cuckoo. "Tag," I shouted. I think I hollered it so loud that everybody could've heard it. "Where's Taggart."

Then he told me how Tag'd gone down to the river one night with the others and sat there on the pier in his chair and watched the storm. Big storm, wind howled, everything was upside down. How Tag'd shouted that he was going to stop the storm like Jesus and walk on the water. How he'd taken two steps and fallen, with the words, "River Jesus," to him. How he'd fallen on the rocks below and was swept away with the storm.

I guess the real reason I loved Tag so well, was 'euz he couldn't walk and guess that's why I told him the story 'bout the Lord Jesus, when he walked on the stormy waters. That night was a miraele, even tho' it killed him. He walked two steps, and he died believin' that his Lord had made him walk.

So now when I go by the little shack an' down to our place by the river, I sit'n look up and thank God that Tag is happy and like to think that he's still asittin' with me, watching our river—Taggart's river.

Forest Interlude

Second Paize Story
By Evelyn Partridge

The cool summer evening had just begun, and myriads of tiny, twinkling stars were beginning to appear in the black velvet of the sky. The only sound disturbing the peaceful quiet of the forest was the soft nurmuring of the west wind, gently caressing the tops of the tall trees as it passed. Over the crest of a nearby hill, the moon, not yet quite full, cast mysterious shadows on the grass carpet beneath the pines. Soon numerous slight rustlings of the leaves announced that the smaller inhabitants of the woods were beginning their nocturnal ramblings.

From the direction of the sagebrush-covered plains, several miles distant, came the mournful howl of a lonely coyote. In answer there was a series of stacatto barks. The hoarse hoot of an owl caused many small animals to seek cover from his ever-watchful eyes. The vague shapes of small furry bodies faded into the shadows as the shrill scream of a cougar echoed and re-echoed throughout a vast space. Then the woodfolk, realizing that no danger threatened them, resumed their interrupted tasks,

From the barely noticeable entrance to a hidden covert of bushes and vines, there was a slight stirring, and a young fawn, evidently awakened from a peaceful sleep, peered forth. Then he stepped hesitantly out from the protection of his home. For several moments he stood gazing quietly around, his ears stiffly erect, and his nose twitching. Then he uttered a plaintive entreaty for his mother, but there was no answer. Not understanding this, the fawn moved forward haltingly, and his light spots were delicately outlined by the pale glow of the moon. He jumped back, startled, as a rabbit scurried across the path in front of him, Again he uttered that pitiful cry, for several hours had elapsed since he had eaten. Hunger alone was the force that compelled him to continue his journey deeper into the forest.

Ilis progress, nnheeded by the smaller forms of life, was not unnoticed by all the denizens of the forest. Two green eyes watched eagerly as the fawn stepped forward, and a greedy tongue licked chops that had not tasted food for two days. On a gnarled limb, ten feet up on a giant pine tree, directly over the path on which the fawn was wandering, crouched a huge cougar, every musele tense with anticipation. Already he was tasting the warm blood and tender meat of his intended victim.

Unaware of impending danger, the fawn stepped beneath the fatal hazard. Swiftly and silently as an arrow, the cougar sprang. Just a fraction of a second before death pounced, some hidden instinct warned the fawn of his danger. With a bound forward, he barely managed to escape the congar's claws. Resorting to the only possible means of escape, the fawn started to run in short, jerky bounds. His eyes were wide with terror as he visualized the inevitable outcome of the race. He was not afraid of death, but with the remarkable tenacity of wild animals, he clung to life. He saw that his pursuer was close behind him and with a last supreme effort, he leaped forward, his eyes dilated, his nostrils distended. With a bound, the cougar pounced on his prey. The fawn had time to give but one little cry before he was borne to earth. Then the final, merciful blow fell.

For a moment all the small woodfolk paused when they heard that strange cry. Then realizing that no danger threatened them or their immediate families, they resumed their usual routine. Slight rustlings again were the only sounds disturbing the peace and quiet as the tall trees stood watch over the forest folk.

Monkinya, Daughter of the Sun God

THERD PRIZE STORY

By Lois McCannon

Monkinya was idol of all her father's tribe. Never before in all the settings of the sum had the Yakimas beheld one of the fair hair and the tan cheek.

At the time of Monkinya's birth the medicine doctor considered it to be an omen for hetter times, for Monkinya had been born during a period of very unhappy years. The corn had had too much rain; for the river had over-flowed its banks, and the Yakimas wandered homeless. The numbers in the tribe diminished.

It was during these desperate times that a daughter was born to the mighty Chieftain, Tumincore. There was a murmur of unhappiness in the tribe. They had wanted a son, a son who would be fearless, strong and stalwart to lead the tribe out of its difficulties.

The medicine-doctor gazed at the fair-haired child. Then he summoned the Yakimas together.

As one transfixed he said, "Do you see this child? She has the sun in her hair. She has been sent you by the Sun God to lead you on to higher levels where you shall prosper and become a mighty nation. She shall be called Monkinya. Praise be the God of the Sun. The Great Spirit has heard your calls and has given you this princess to lead you in the future. If you follow her decisions, you shall become great people. But you must listen to her teachings and obey, or the Sun God will be displeased and take away your many blessings. Praise to the God of the Sun!"

The braves listened in wonder and gazed steadfastly at the medicine doctor as he fell dead at their feet. No one was surprised, for it was as though the Sun God had spoken through his lips and then stilled them forever.

Thus was Monkinya introduced into her father's once great tribe of the Yakimas.

Seventeen years passed; seventeen years of work and pleasure in which the tribe reaped bountiful harvests and multiplied in numbers, seventeen years in which Monkinya became the most supple, graceful and lovely maid of all maidens. Although she was seventeen, she was not as yet married. Little Flower, her mother, had married at fifteen, and so had Monkinya's friends. Monkinya must decide which of the braves she would like to marry, for there were many offers. When her father spoke thus to her, Monkinya thought of Kasunka, with his broad shoulders, his lean, muscular body. He was lithe and agile, placing fisrt in all sports. After thinking that far, she remembered Lilotus, who also wanted to marry Kasnnka.

In her dark beauty, Lilotus vied with the Princess for loveliness. She, too, had had many proposals of marriage, but she was waiting for one more—the one she would accept if he would but ask. She wished he'd hurry, for she was nineteen and all the squaws looked oddly at her every time she approached. In her scheming mind, Lilotus planned ways to turn Kasunka against Monkinya. Suddenly she decided on a plan. She would go to Monkinya. Adding more beads to her dress, she started on her errand.

She stopped in her tracks as she heard the steady rhythm of the drums. As the sound grew louder, the braves gathered around the campfire before the teepee of Chief Tumincore. Outside the tent was a coal black horse, foaming at the mouth; his sides were heaving. All present new what this meant. A scout had reported.

A silence fell over the Yakimas as their chief came out of his teepee. "Lone Wolf has returned from his post to warn us that the Blackfect arc on the warpath, seeking for more scalps. They are nearing this place in their scarch. Will it be the scalp of the Yakimas? The scalps of our women and children on their belts? Or will it be the scalp of the Blackfeet on our belts? That we must decide. My daughter, Monkinya, is calling on the Sun God to lead us."

A war-cry split the air, followed by another and another as the braves danced around the fire. More and more painted faces added their color to the scene as neighboring tribesmen poured in to help the Yakimas and to safeguard their families.

"Ah, there is Kasunka alone by the tent. I shall go to him." However, as Lilotus started toward him, Tumincore came from the tent to him.

"Kasunka, my son, you must lead the attack, if there be one, for I am too old. I can no longer lead my people in battle."

Kasunka slightly bowed his head. "You honor me greatly, O Chief. I shall await your command."

Lilotus had heard too much. "My son" Chief Tumincore had said! So it was all settled. Kasunka was going to marry Monkinya. Lilotus wasn't good enough. Well, something would happen. If she couldn't marry Kasunka, neither would Monkinya. She ran to her teepee and placed the knife her father had given her in the top of her high-topped moccasin.

As she was going back to the tent, she heard a groan and halted. Where had it coinc from?

"Lilotus, Lilotus."

There was a figure lying on the ground. She rushed over to it. It was Great Eagle, a scout. "Come to me. I bring news. The Blackfeet know we are beating the war drums. They are planning to ambush our braves at White Bluffs. My leg is broken. I can't drag myself farther. There are about—four hundred—in mm—ber—reserves way—behind. Tell—Mon-kin—ya—" He lay panting, unable to say more; then with a huge shudder, the broken form lay still.

"Yes," said Lilotus, "I shall deliver your message just as you told it to me." With a different purpose now in mind, she went on to see Monkinya.

Lilotus completed her story to Monkinya, "—and then he died with your name on his lips. What are you going to do?"

"The scont has done well. May the Great Spirit show him into the best of happy hunting grounds," said Monkinya. "Some braves must go into the ambush as decoys to draw the Blackfeet ont. It must be made to look as though all are going into it. We shall have to ask for volunteers. Go tell my father and have him come to me."

Lilotus watched the braves. The volunteers were going to leave first and the warriors behind them. "There is Star Face among the first of the volunteers. He is too young to die," thought Lilotus. "He has just begun life. Mine is all over now." She ran back to her teepee. "If the scout, Great Eagle, can give his life for his tribe, then surely I—"

A few minutes later, a figure in leggings approached the horses and riders, but kept in the shadows. A voice spoke, "Star Faee, get down a moment. It is important."

The rider dismounted. A moment of silence, and then the horse was remounted, and a tall figure walked off into the blackness.

Yakima war-cries rent the moonless night. As the volunteers dashed down the pass into White Bluffs, a band was loosened around the head of one, and a flock of blue-black hair streamed in the wind. Tightly reined horses rose on their hind legs and thumped the earth.

Above the clattering of horses' hoofs and the fierce war-eries that filled the air, a shrill scream like that of a woman was heard. Kasunka gave the signal, and his braves dashed down into the pass and joined the melee to become a part of the slaughter that was taking place. Knives gleaned in the dawn of that day. The twang of arrows filled the air. Sickening thirds were heard as tomohawks found their destined places. Both Yakimas and Blackfeet fought furiously. In place of cool refreshing water in the nearby stream, blood flowed supreme.

The next morning the victorious Yakimas returned, bringing with them many captives. Kasunka immediately went to Chief Tumincore's teepee and was greeted by the princess Monkinya who had anxiously been waiting his return.

To the radiantly happy Monkinya, Kasunka told of the brave volunteers that had given their lives that the braves might defeat their enemy and thus save the lives of those at home. "—And, Monkinya, may your father, the Sun God, always direct us in the future as he has in the past."

PUMPKIN HOLLER One of the most beautiful weddings that the inhabitants of this fair city have ever witnessed was the nuptial ceremonics for the popular debutante of the past season, Mary Elaine Frances to Clarence Howard, successful dramatic artist of the Community Center playhouse. The wedding took place at high noon Friday in the Little Church Around the Corner. The bride wore a gown of dove grey designed by the well-known fashion expert Mlle. Helene Weider. The bride was attended by maid of honor, Miss Evelyn Majer, and bridesmaids, Miss Ila Morgan and Miss Lois McCannon. The best man was Earle Hollingsworth. The Very Rev. Harry Goudge officiated. The couple will live at the Pow Wow apartments upon their return from a honeymoon to the Grand Coulee Exposition of 1947,

Flash! ON THE HIGH SEAS—Capt. Jim Hale's Coast Gnard cutter received a C. Q. D. late today from the palatial yacht of Mr. Walter Hunt, the limburger cheese magnate. Trouble was located in the boiler room where Woody Nord was discovered "stowawaying" in one of the ship's funnels. (Was he burned up!) The schooner was returning from Tahiti where the party had been the guests of Virginia Kincaid, Princess of the island. Notables who were guests of Mr. Hant included the famons "Harmonettes" otherwise known as Bonnie Connor, Ruth Claflin and Virginia Ramsey. Panl McNeil, popular radio announcer at N. C. H. S. studios, gave the distress signal.

So now with pages of love (apologies to Walter Winchell) we sign off until another time at this same time when we will bring you more Notes from our Little Red Book.

DELIGHTFUL PLEASURE

By Effie Bilde

And rain that comes in thundering showers.

I love to sit for hours and hours
To look at mountains high as towers,
To see long stemmed and graceful flowers,

I love to see all lovely things, Especially birds with brilliant wings, Copper bells with resounding rings, And silver rain that laughs and sings.

I love to sit and watch the sky As clouds so white go sailing by, And watch the happy babbling brooks That wind in shady mossy nooks.

Since home is so dear to me I'm sure my only wish can be, That when they lay me to my rest I hope it's in the great Northwest.

In 1923 Miss Emma Clarke founded the Scriptorian society, originally the senior English club. The purpose of the group was to promote an interest in literary work and to give constructive criticism on creative writing.

Requirements for membership admit only those capable of the best work in English composition. Any girl having four semester grades of A or B in English and no grade below C is eligible to submit a short story, poem or

GOLF CLUB

The Golf club is an organization for girls who are interested in the sport. A girl need not know how to play the game to become a member.

Members play regularly at the Downriver golf course. This year they have taken lessons from Bill Mader, pro.

During the fall members played every Saturday morning. A golf ball was given to the girl making the lowest score,

Members are placed in two sections, the advanced and the beginners. Miss Pauline Everett is adviser of the advanced group. Miss Wilhelmine Timm has charge of the beginners.

VOX PUELLARUM

The Vox Puellarum was organized as a club for girl debaters in May 1912, under the direction of P. G. Hargreaves, former principal of North Central and Miss Jessie Gibson, who was then Girls' League adviser. When standards broadened two years later, it became a literary organization in answer to popular demand

Today the purpose of the club is to support all projects of interest and value to the school and particularly to develop within the club musical, dramatic, literary and vocational tendencies. In 1927, the custom of staging a vaudville performance known as the Vox Varicty Vodvil was begun. Although the vodvil has been discontinued the last few years, presentation of ten dollars to the senior A girl who

The activities of the club this semester were a program at Edgecliff Sanatorium and one at the Unemployed Men's Bureau. The girls are taking care of a needy family for Christmas which otherwise wouldn't be helped by the Community Chest or other such organizations. Several intellectual programs were enjoyed by the group with Mrs. Harry Davenport and a number of girls giving book reviews and reports. The last project is their annual banquet.

Membership is being limited to 25 girls who were admitted when either sophomores or juniors and who have no grades below C.

Membership is limited to 15 girls and 15 boys chosen from tryonis given at the beginning of every semester.

Every spring a pay convocation is spon-

RHO KAPPA → →

In 1921, the Radio club was organized by boys who wished to promote an interest in radio. Recently, since social activities began to play an important part in club work, the name Rho Kappa has been instituted in the place of the former title, Radio club.

In past years, the Radio club was a commercial radio station, and it was in this club that KFIO was originated. For years the station presented programs with the students for the performers. Then, the station was low powered and inefficient. All operators were members of the club who had studied the theory of radio.

Under the watchful (ye of A, L. Smith, science instructor, the club prospered and grew to be one of the most active elubs in the school.

Finally, North Central's broadcasting station, KFIO, was required to meet higher standards or go off the air. In order to raise the $500 needed, the club sponsored concessions at the carnivals, the pow wow and various other activities.

The club again has a fine membership and transmitter. The quota of the membership in the club is 20 and there is an active membership at present of 18. The club has six licensed amateurs. A successful candidate for membership in the organization must pass a test on radio.

Senior Dramatics

"The Young Idea," a bright, sparkling, sophisticated comedy by Noel Coward, presented Friday evening, January 15, by the senior dramatics class, under the direction of Mrs. Grace Douglas Leonard, proved that success can be repeated and that "variety is the spice of life."

The scene of acts I and 2 is the drawing-room of George Brent's English home. The scene of act 3 is the terrace of Jennifer Brent's home in Italy.

The theme is in a modern vein, revolving about the efforts of Gerda and Sholto to win their divorced father back to their mother, who is a temperamental writer, Gerda and Sholto, having been reared on the continent in a Bohemian-sort of way, go into an act at every opportunity, and as portrayed by Alita Watternd and Earle Hollingsworth, provided the greatest part of the councily.

The players were:

Gerda	Alita Watterud
George	Clarence Howard
Roddy	Ben Blenner

One-Act Plays

During the semester, one-act plays were presented, two comedies, a melodrama and a fantasy.

In the comedy, "Breakfast," the situation between the parents and the children of the "younger generation" was presented by Walter Hunt, Doris Elder, Ina Mae Gleason, Woody Nord, Elsie Hultgren and Elsie Zieder.

"Knock Three Times" was a light story of the quick-changing moods of a couple married for only two hours, with Alita Watterud, Clarence Howard and Elsie Zieder.

"His Brother's Keeper" was a Civil war

melodrama, presenting the conflict in a woman's heart between her love for her people and her love for a man. The woman was Billie Stearns, the man was Ben Blenner, and "his brother's keeper" was Earle Hollingsworth. Others in the cast were Elsie Hultgren and Claude Adams.

"Will o' the Wisp," a fantasy concerning the superstitions of the peasants of Ireland, was presented by Lois McCannon, Ruth Bloom and Gladys Stevens.

The class also experimented with radio plays, using the new sound equipment. This method was used to advertise the class play.

Operetta

The operetta, "Hollywood Bound", was presented Friday and Saturday evenings, Dec. 4 and 5, by the chorus class under the direction of C. Olin Ricc. The three act operetta was written by Don Wilson, who was graduated from North Central in June, 1913. It was dedicated to Mr. Ricc, the inscription reading, "For C. Olin Ricc, to whom this show is respectfully dedicated in appreciation.—Don Wilson"

All the action takes place in the Vericolor studioes in Hollywood, with a background of glamour and personality. The story concerns Bob Kent, a young inventor, who has perfected a new color process for the movies which he calls "Vericolor". He is backed by Mr. Norton, the president of Quadrangle pictures, who believes that he will be able to dominate the movie industry with Kent's new process.

Everyone is surprised when the big test for "Vericolor" fails. Bob knows this is due to sabotage on the part of someone who wants him to fail, but Norton is unimpressed. He withdraws his support and gives Bob a week to get out of the studios.

With the help of Windy Bryan, his songwriter pal, and Marcia, Mr. Norton's daughter, Bob goes ahead to film his own show, "Fanfare", which is to demonstrate the practicability of "Vericolor,"

One difficulty after another is thrown in his way, and it finally appears that there is nothing left to do but to give up. However, some quick thinking turns the tables. The success of "Vericolor" is demonstrated to the satisfaction of everyone, including Mr. Norton. The Chinese Detectives, Wun Hop and Hi De Ho, disclose the identity of the malefactors who have been working against Bob and the curtain falls with the promise of a wedding in the near future.

Shrine game, and participated in the dedication of the Neely memorial on the playfield.

Debate

With the end of the term nearing a close, the North Central debate squad will have in the history of the school. The question for debate was: Resolved, That all electric utilities completed one of the most active semesters—should be governmentally owned and operated.

As the question was a problem of nation wide importance, it afforded numerous angles for interesting and spirited discussion.

The Warriors tried a new system of debating this fall which proved to be most successful. Instead of participating in the state conference debates, which they have always done in previous years, it was determined that the Warriors engage in a series of nondecision debates with as many high schools of the district as possible.

In this way more debates could be presented and every person in the class given a chance to engage in at least one or more contests. Meets were arranged regularly throughout the term with such schools as Chency, Deer Park, West Valley and Gonzaga.

The squad consisted this year of eleven members, all first year debaters except Betty Stuart who returned for her second year. The rest of the debaters are: Doris Elder, Nettie Roe, Irma Larson, Hazel Purdy, Mary McCallum, Milton DeArmand, Ward Barnes, John Dullanty, Don Snyder and Bill Byers.

Four debates were arranged between North

Central and Lewis and Clark, not on the national debate question, but on questions that were of particular interest to the students. Two of the questions were: "Resolved, That moving pictures are detrimental to the youth of today" and "That interscholastic athletics are detrimental."

With the extensive practice and the experience derived from these contests, the North Central debate squad plans to put a convincing battle in the all-important intracity triangular debates in an endeavor to regain the Harvard trophy which was lost to Rogers last year. This meet, which includes the three high schools, North Central, Lewis and Clark and Rogers, will take place the latter part of January.

North Central has won the Harvard trophy for two consecutive years. If it is won three times it remains in permanent possesion of the winning team.

The success of Indian debate teams is largely due to Miss Grace Campbell's fine coaching. This term completes the fifth year in which Miss Campbell has ably coached North Central debate teams.

Rogers	1	2	.667	65	59
North Central	1	5	.167	30	77
Lewis and Clark	1	5	.167	39	89

Starting their season out with a heart-breaking setback at the hands of the Rogers'

Pirates, the Redmen of North Central followed through with four losses and a win, constantly playing against the breaks of the game and always being on the darker side of Lady Luck.

For the first time in many years, North Central ended the season in last place, the only consolation being that they tied Lewis and Clark's Tigers for that place in the standings. The only win of the season came on Oct. 8 when the Braves completely outclassed the Orange squad and won, 12-6.

The team had a fine trip by rail to Great Falls, Mont., near the end of the season, but a great part of the joy of the trip was sapped by their subsequent 34-0 loss to the gigantic Montanans.

Coach George Sander, popular new grid mentor, was seriously handicapped by having green material and a sad lack of weight. His boys stood behind school and coach in each game, however, and never once were licked before the final gun. Even then, they carried off the field with them the satisfaction of having played the game.

On an all-city team determined by ballots of players of each of the high schools on their toughest opponents, two North Central lads were named: "Powerhouse" Jim Ferguson, fighting fullback, and Lawrence Ferrante, tough tackle.

Members of the "A" squad for the 1936 season were:

BRAVES BOW TO ROGERS PIRATES, $_{6-0}$

Starting out the 1936 season with a ragged performance against the Pirates of Rogers high, North Central sustained a 6-0 loss. The game was played on the Indian field, Thursday, Sept. 24. The crowd overflowed the stands, and was one of the most appreciative audiences seen for several years.

The Redmen were somewhat slowed up early in the game through the loss, by injury, of Sam Contos, flashy half. The Indian line showed up to a good advantage throughout the contest, but half way in the final period, the strong Pirate pass offensive made itself evident when Sam Tortorelli passed from the six yard-line to Don Balch in the Red and Black zone,

All through the game, the teams seesawed up and down the field, neither getting uncomfortably close to the others' goal. 'Twice, however, the Warriors made long runs and crossed the Bues' goal, only to have both plays called back for misinterpretation of rules. Always standing out over their teammates were Schreiner, Ferguson, Rehn, Ferrante and Smith of the Indians; and Tortorelli, Balch and Sweet of the Purple squad.

This contest proved conclusively that the other teams in the series were going to have rough going with the men of George Sander. The N. C. coach stated he was dissatisfied with his team's performance in this game, but expected 100 percent improvement.

GONZAGA CUTS DOWN RED WARRIORS

In a game that ended in a score anything hut indicative of the comparative playing ability of the two teams, North Central went down to a 20-0 defeat at the hands of Gonzaga, Friday, Oct. 2, on the Gonzaga turf.

Breaks of the game were largely responsible for the three tonchdowns chalked up by the victors. An Indian fumble, recovered on the Red 29 led to the first tally as the Blue marched the rest of the way to the goal soon after. George Derr of Gonzaga gave a preview of how he was to flash all season when he intercepted a long North Central pass in the third stanza and ran 50 yards to the Warriors' goal. The same procedure was undergone early in the final period when Randall of the Bullpups scooped up an Indian pass on the N. C. 28 yard marker. Very soon after, Derr passed complete to Higgins in the visitors' end zone. The point was no good after the last tally, and the game ended Gonzaga 20, North Central 0.

Despite the fact that the first two games had left the Indians scoreless, they felt they had won a moral victory in fighting every inch of the way and being held down only by the hard luck that dogged their trail the entire season.

Jim Ferguson and Sam Contos showed up to an excellent advantage in this contest, and looked like the real thing the entire 60 minutes. Their performances were perhaps overshadowed by that of George Derr, flashy Zag back, who completely won the admiration of the crowd and his opponents by his speedy and hard-charging work on defense and offense.

NORTH CENTRAL DOWNS TIGERS FOR FIRST 1936 VICTORY

Consistently swinging down field behind a smooth-functioning line, the Redmen of North

Jim Ferguson

Al Rehn

Central turned back their traditional Lewis and Clark rivals on the Indian field, Thursday, Oct. 8. The final score was North Central 12, Lewis and Clark 6.

Undoubtedly turning in the finest performance of the city series in several seasons,

"Powerhouse" Jim Ferguson, Warrior full-back, swept through the lane formed by the line 20 yards to the Tiger goal early in the fourth period for the winning touchdown.

After playing a seoreless first half, the Tigers decided to point the way to scoring in the third frame, and flipped a long forward that ended up in the striped zone of North Central. This was the first tally of the year for the Orange, and their stands went wild. Not to be outdone, however, Sam Contos of the home team tossed a long floater to Freddie Wolfe for the first N. C. counter of the game and of the year. Smooth running soon after by the Rednien advanced the ball to threatening ground, and Ferguson's amazing cutback play came at this point, running the score up to 12-6 for North Central. Neither squad was able to convert after touchdown. and this six point lead was the Reds' victory margin.

Kicks by Al Schreiner were another outstanding feature of this struggle, and served to keep the South Siders at arm's length the major part of the game.

Coach George Sander of the Indians stated he was well satisfied with the team's performance, and that they had shown the expected improvement.

This was the Warriors' ninth consecutive game without a defeat at the hands of the Orange and Black.

ROGERS SINKS BRAVES FOR SECOND TIME

In the second tiff of the season with the

Hal Goudge

Pirates of Rogers high, the Redmen were turned back 19-6, on the Rogers field, Friday, Oct. 23.

The Braves got off to a fine start early in the first quarter when they received the kiekoff and advanced on a series of five first downs to the Rogers' ten, from where "Powerhouse" Ferguson ran it into the stripes, giving the Warriors a 6-0 lead.

Not to be outdone, however, the Pirates received the resultant kickoff and marched to the North Central 30, from where Sam Tortorelli passed to Wollaston in the visitors' end zone. In the third frame, a delayed kick by eaptain Al Schreiner for the Reds was blocked on the mid-field stripe, recovered by Oscar Crain of the Pirates, and run for a second Rogers tally. The try for point was not good. A pass interception early in the third period gave the Rogerians a third and final tally, which, when the point was dropkicked, made the score Rogers 19, North Central 6 at the final gun.

This game was the only real moral as well as actual defeat of the season for the Natives. Their fine start in the first quarter fell through with a bang when Crain raced 50 yards with the recovered punt. From that time on, the fighting spirit seemed to be sapped; and the contest proved the saddest game of the year for Coach Sander's men.

SECOND GONZAGA TUSSLE HARD-FOUGHT AFFAIR

Fighting what proved to be the toughest game of the city series, Thursday, Oct. 29, the Indians were turned back by the champion Gonzaga Bullpups on the North Central playfield, 12-0.

Both feams left the field with a feeling of having given all they had, and North Central felt anything in her heart but defeat. George Sander's men tore shreds in a supposedly unimpregnable Gonzaga line and stopped backfield scoring rushes almost at will.

The smoothest play of many games provided

Ganzaga with their initial tally, as a triple reverse from their own 37 ended up in the North Central end zone early in the first quarter. The Zags staved off any possible Indian threats after their successful deceptive play, and the first period ended 6-0 in their favor.

The second period provided thrills as the Indians drove to the hrink of the Blue goal, but couldn't punch it across. Early in the third stanza, the Reds intercepted a Bullpup pass and marched to the Blue one-yard stripe, again failing to score. Ganzaga punted out of the hole, but for the third time, North Central advanced to the Zag one-yard line. Again they last it on downs. From here, Gonzaga was quick to take advantage of breaks, and ran over the Reds' goal soon after intercepting a pass. Neither point was good, and the final score was 12-0, with Gonzaga on the heavy end.

This game showed North Central to be more of a team than the series standings indicated. At no time in the contest did the Indians feel defeated or turned back.

At half time in this game, the score hoard honoring the memory or Dr. John R. Neely was officially presented to the school by the Athletic Round Table. The presentation was attended by colorful ceremony, and was well received by the capacity crowd.

GREAT FALLS SWAMPS INDIANS, 84-0

On Saturday, Nov. 14, the North Central football squad journeyed to Great Falls, Montana, to meet the heavy Great Falls team in a night game. Snowed under by a mountain of weight and reserve strength, the Redmen left the field with a 34-0 loss.

Despite the apparent rout, Coach Sander was proud of the fine struggle put up by his men against insurmountable odds. Weighing against the fact that the Bisons scored in every period, was the fact that a team out-weighed on an average of 40 pounds to a man had never stopped fighting until the finish gun.

The Warriors threatened very seldom, heing overenue by the terrific force, weight and playing ability of the Montana aggregation. Shining in every department of the game was Daw, Bison backfield star. He weighed 194, as compared to weights in the line of 198, 189, 182, 180, 196 and other similar poundage. One man on the squad tipped the heam at 214 pounds. North Central's heaviest man, Harry Goudge, weighed in at 181.

In spite of the disheartenment of defeat, the gridders had a very pleasant trip, traveling on the deluxe Empire Builder and enjoying excellent hotel accommodations in the Montana eity. Coach Sander stated after the struggle that his hoys had put up the most inspiring and satisfying performance of the season.

LEWIS AND CLARK DOWNS REDS FIRST TIME IN FIVE YEARS, 14-12

Pulling out of a seemingly hopeless hole in the last six minutes of play, the Lewis and Clark Tigers turned back the Reds for the first time in five years, on Thanksgiving day, by a score of 14 to 12. This tilt was the Jungle Cats' first series win of 1936, and finished the city series with the Tigers and Indians in a tie for third and last place.

The first three quarters of the contest were fought on an icy cold gridiron before a small crowd, and saw the Indians again and again show themselves to be the better team. Late in the second quarter, captain Al Schreiner of the Redmen showed a brilliant piece of strattegy by quick kicking over the head of the L. C. safety man, the ball being downed on the Tiger seven-yard stripe. The South Siders

FOCTBALL Felrat row: Stan Stevens, Harry Goudge, Jack Frazier. were forced to punt soon after, and the ball, partially blocked, flew into the hands of "Powerhouse" Ferguson on the 20. He was nailed on the nine. From here, Contos punched across. The kick was no good. Nearly through the third stanza, a smooth long pass, Contos to Zimmerman, gave the Reds a 12-0 lead. This lead remained on the board until penalties and passes gave the Tigers the ball on the N.C. 25. From this point, Robinson from across the river cut through center to the stripes. The kick was good. N. C. lcd 12-7 with three minutes to play. The kickoff was to the Braves, but a blocked punt ended up in the Cats' possession on the Indian one-marker. The Orange tore across, and led, 13-12. Garrison added the second point and the Orange went home victorious, 14-12.

Never were fans, writers and all observers so surprised at a sensational comeback as they were at this first win by the Elsies from the Redmen in ten meetings. North Central left the stands dazed and feeling unable to comprehend this sudden reversal of fate. Lewis and Clark rooters ate their Thanksgiving turkey for the first time in five years without having the spectre of defeat haunting them.

Coach nor team made no alihis, only realizing that a touch of overconfidence had laid the school tradition and themselves low. Despite this unsatisfactory finish to the grid season, the Braves took it gracefully and now point to next season for a fresh start.

Basketball

Spokane's city high school haskethall schedule was announced on December 10 and was, as usual, a 24 game round-robin tournament for the four schools.

Coach J. Wesley Taylor of North Central was faced with the prospect of having only two lettermen return when his squad opened practice on December 1, Ray Forrester, last year high scorer of the squad, and George Ray, outstanding reserve of 1935-36. Archie Rehn, John Harvey, Clarence Howard and Virgil Graff are a few of the men Coach Taylor will put his trust in for this season. All of these hoys except one are to be graduated.

The usual pre-season and Christmas trip schedule was announced as follows: Dec. 11, West Valley; Dec. 18, Cashmere; Dec. 19, Chelan; Dec. 23, Odessa; Dec. 26, Bonners Ferry; Dec. 28, Priest River; Dec. 29, Harrington; Jan. 9, Chewelah.

INTERCLASS BASKETBALL

Again in 1936 the sophomore A squad copped the interclass basketball crown, losing only one game, the last one. Captain Bob Hoesly led his squad to six consecutive victories and to the top spot in the standings. Runners up were junior B's, junior C's and seniors, all of whom won five and lost two to tie for second place.

Captains of the interclass teams were: Soph A, Bob Hoesley; soph B, Jack Nicholsen; soph C, Howard Shane; junior A, George Jackson; junior B, Bob Savage; junior C, Rex Rogers; senior, Harry Scruggs.

The sports staff of The North Central News announced their all-interclass hoop squad as follows:

Forward—Bob Hoesley Sophomore A
Forward—Jack Nicholsen Sophomore A
Center—Bruce Penny Junior B
Guard—Bob Savage Junior B
Guard—George Jackson Junior A

Teams in the order in which they finished were: First, sophomore A; second, junior B, junior C, senior; third, sophomore B; fourth, junior A; fifth, frosh; sixth, sophomore C.

Guy O. Barnes and Archie Buckley handled the sports in a very satisfactory manner, and turned up some good prospects for future varsity squads.

Tennis

Bill Maniatis, senior A. emerged victorious in the annual boys' singles tennis elimination matches by turning back Orin Johnson, 6-3, 6-4, 4-6, 6-2, on the N. C. courts, Friday, Oct. 9. For three years, Bill was runner-up for this honor.

Bill received a dozen new tennis balls, presented by The North Central News. Orin was awarded six tennis balls. The honor of being school tennis champion, of course also goes with winning these matches.

In the mixed doubles tourney, in which a girl and a boy are paired, Jeanette Whiteside and Orin Johnson were winners, with Betty Reiling and Wesley Scott runners-up. Bill Maniatis, singles champ, reached the third round of doubles play, paired with Irene Albright.

Ernest E. Hix coaches boys' tennis, and this fall season received a gratifying turnout at his call for the singles matches. Tuesdays and Fridays were the days on which matches were contested.

Cross Country

North Central's cross country season drew to a close Wednesday, Oct. 28, when the Lewis and Clark runners defeated the men of J. Wesley Taylor, 19 to 36, on the Mission course. In this sport the low score is winner.

Breezing in considerably ahead of Theron Goldsmith of the Red team was Bill Wade, Orange star runner. The course is slightly over a mile and a half in length, and is a rough trail over gravel streets and rough fields. The Indians won in this sport in 1935. Strangely coincident with the year of the race was this season's score, 19 to 36.

Wade and Goldsmith were followed closely by Nieholsen, Meyers and Gaylord of Lewis

OUTSTANDING SENIOR A GIRLS

As a reward for those girls who participate in the extra-curricular activities in the field of sports, the gym department gives each girl who has earned 400 points an all-activity letter in the form of a shield. A black bar is awarded for each additional 400 points, three being the maximum number awarded.

Besides earning their points by participating in any of the numerous sports or in the dances of the Operetta or in the Doll Shop, the girls may earn points by working in the gym office during their vacant periods, checking in their clean rompers, turning in health charts and walkslips, transferring league points, and obtaining dental O. K.'s and physical examinations.

Lois McCannon has been an unusually outstanding figure in the field of sports. She was a member of the tennis team during her entire time at North Central and captain of the team this last term. Besides her tennis letter, she received both a black and white star, the latter signifying her captainship. Lois also took part in the other sports, and carned her all-activity shield and two additional bars.

Two other girls who were active in the various sports were Romaine Pearson and Betty Reiling. They played tennis together in doubles, and this last semester were first ranking doubles on the squad. They both carned their letters and an additional star. Romaine has her all-activity shield with one bar; Betty, her shield with two. Mary Elaine Frances and Evelyn Major also played doubles this semester and earned their tennis letters. Evelyn has her activity shield.

Dorothy Patz, who carned her manager's letter in tennis as a reward for her faithful service to the team, received an all-activity shield and an additional bar.

Elizabeth Stuart, Gertrude Schoening, Virginia Farline, Ina Mae Gleason, and Jean Kinney were also active in tennis, all of them carning their letters, the first three receiving all-activity letters.

Those who took an active part in the dancing were: Effa Freese, Patricia Child, and Helen Jean Anderson, Helen and Effa receiving their all-activity letters.

TENNIS

The unusual success of the girs' tennis team this year was due to three distinct things: first, the able coaching of Miss Elsa Pinkham; second, the successful managing of Dorothy Patz, Gladys James and Cleo Gale; and third, the interest and unusually cheerful attitude of the girls themselves. Not only was the season a success from a point of victories attained, but also from the point of health gained and good sportsmanship learned by the girls.

In the meet, Sept. 23, with West Valley in which the usual number of matches, fifteen singles and six doubles, were played on the courts of both schools, the North Central girls were victorious, taking nineteen of the liventy-one matches.

On the following Wednesday, they downed Lewis and Clark girls, the score being 12 to 9.

In the meet with Rogers our girls took every one of the matches, only singles being played.

The Senier A's who took part in the matches are as follows: Lois McCannon (captain), Romaine Pearson, Betty Reiling, Mary Elaine Francis, Evelyn Major, Jean Kinney, and Virginia Farline.

Many of the girls received awards this semester; these were given out in a double convocation October 30.

Lois McCannon was given a white star signifying her captainship of the team, and Dorothy Patz received a manager's letter. Irene Albright and Ellen Freed were given their second black star, and those to receive their first were Audrene Gregory, Romaine Pearson, and Betty Reiling.

The following girls received their letters:

Virginia Farline, Jackie Feltman, Mary Elaine Francis, Jean Kinney, Mary Emily Knaack, Evelyn Majer, Betty Morganthaler, Janc Radkey, Marian Rice, Ruth Richardson, Jean Shaw, Jane Smire, and Laura Jean Webster.

Ellen Freed will be the captain of the Girls' Tennis team next spring.

TENNIS—MIXED DOUBLES —— →—

An unusual event in the sport activities this semester was the mixed doubles tennis tournament which took place after the girls had finished their inter-school meets and the boys had finished their regular singles tournament.

Sixteen teams of doubles started in the tournament on Oct. 15 and play continued every afternoon until the matches were finished.

Jeanette Whiteside and Orin Johnson won the tournament defeating Betty Reiling and Lesley Scott, 8-6, 7-5, in a closely fought match. Maxine Dye and Harold Downie placed third.

Other players who reached the third round were Irene Albright and Bill Maniatis, and Lois McCannon and Kenneth Strickler.

BASKETBALL →

This semester the tryont for girls' basketball was unusually large. After being divided into teams according to their grades, the girls selected captains and did some hard practicing for the tournament which was to follow.

At the finish of the tournament, the Senior team and the Sophomore B girls were tied for top place—each team having won seven games and lost one. This tie was played off at the annual Dads' and Daughters' Frolic, Dec. 16. In that game the 10B girls proved themselves the superior team by winning with a score of 14 to 8.

Those girls who were on the winning team are as follows: Dorothy Van Hersett, Agnes Porter, Billy Lair, Faye Latta, Marjorie Hays, Violet McKelvy, Eleanor Esplin, Aletha Rupp, Jean Smith and Katherine Solinsky.

The turnout for all of the teams was so large that no girl played the entire game, the girls changing during the half and the quarter periods thus giving more girls a chance to play.

Miss Catherine Dittebrandt had charge of the basketball tournament. She did all of the coaching and refereeing during the season. Betty Lon Miller and Margaret Mac Miller were student manager and chairman respectively.

GOLF

This semester the twenty-four girls who joined the golf club were divided into two groups, Miss Wilhelmina Timm being the adviser of the beginning group, and Miss Pauline Everett of the advanced. Part of the club dues was used to pay for the group Jessons which were given by Mr. Willard Mader, a professional at Downriver Golf course. Sixteen of the girls played four or more times during the fall, while five played at least ten different times.

On seven different Saturdays the girls played tournaments among themselves, and played one invitation tournament with the boys' golf club.

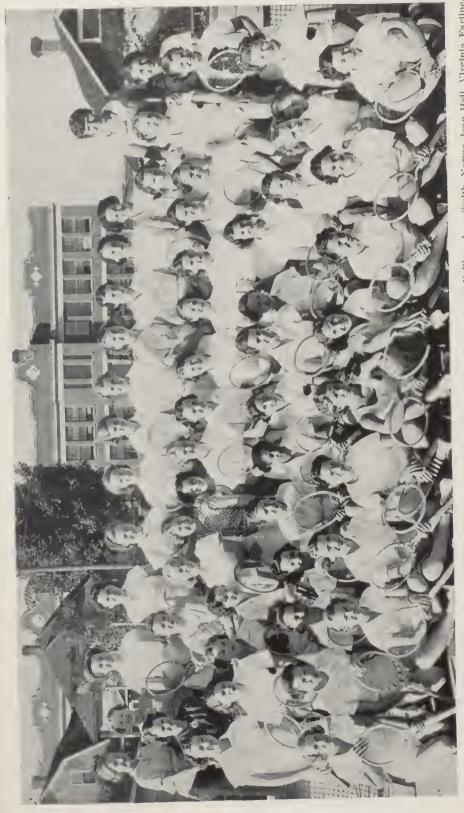

Gertrude Schoening was the winner of the handicap tournament and Virginia Kelsey held the low gross score for the nine holes. The same two girls tied in the Blind Par tournament.

SOCCER

Soccer, a sport new to our school, was introduced into the girls' extra-curricular activities this semester with the following aunouncement: "All girls who are interested in playing soccer are to report on the playfield immediately after school in their gym suits Friday, Sept. 25."

Under the mangership of Lucille Blake and the chairmanship of Barle McCutchen, the 65 girls who reported were divided into four teams: The freshmen, with Violet Marsden as their captain, called themselves the N. C. Patroits; the sophomores, who chose the name Mothers' Little Helpers, had Betty Lair as their captain; the juniors or the Lucky Dozen, as they chose to be called, named Irene Albright as their captain; and the seniors under the able direction of Ellen Freed answered when anyone called for the Sock'ers.

Miss Catherine Dittebrandt, assisted by Miss Norma Beierlein, taught the girls some simplified rules, under which those who participated thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

The Sock'ers carried off all the honors by winning all of their games in the round-robin tournament which ended Friday, Oct. 9. Those girls who were on the victorious team are as follows: Lily Allen, Lucille Blake, Jane Cockburn, Ellen Freed (captain), Margaret Kestler, Dorothy Lambert, June Peterson, LuElla Phillipson, Mary Roborts Ethel Van Liew and Dorothy Moore.

SKATING

Skating this semester was met with enthusiasm from both the boys and the girls, the average attendance during the first of the semester being about 170 students. Starting Nov. 4, every Wednesday after school was North Central day at the rink, and all students were entitled to a special rate.

The skating chairmen were Gladys James, Nita Anderson, Jeanette Whiteside, John Little, and Roderick Jones. They took charge of the issning of tickets before school on Wednesdays and study hall slips to those who had sixth vacant and wished to leave early.

Besides furnishing a recreation for the sludents, skating was also very popular with the teachers. Those faculty members who were frequently present at the various skates are as follows: Miss Elsa Pinkham, Miss Catherine Dittebrandt, Miss Mary Sidney Mitchell, Miss Wilhelmina Timm, Miss Pauline Everett, Miss Belle Wynne, Mr. F. G. Kennedy, Mrs. Roberta Flemming and Miss Marion Cleveland.

SWIMMING

Although greatly handicapped through having their own pool closed and consequently having to go to the "Y" to swim, the girls who were interested in swimming participated in this sport every other Thursday from 4 to 5 p. m.

Before any girl was allowed to attend, she had first to obtain a medical examination, Dr. J. E. Drake, school doctor, giving free exams to any girl so desiring. The girls supplied their own towels, suits, and eaps, and obtained their tickets in the gym office Thursday morning before school.

Both Miss Elsa Pinkhain and Miss Catherine Ditebrandt kindly assisted the girls with their swimming, and Miss Beulah White, instructor at the Y. W. C. A., was also present to give lessons.

The student chairmen were Margaret Rosauer, Jean Kinney and Marian Rice.

OUTING CLUB

This semester the hiking club was reorganized into an outing club under the able leadership of Miss Catherine Dittebrandt; any girl was eligible, the only requirement being that she was interested. These outings were not confined to hikes alone, for each member was given an opportunity to acquire a practical knowledge about camp craft and winter sports were included in the program.

The members were divided into four groups according to their experience in and knowledge of the 'wide open spaces': First, camp craft; second, sports; third, scouting; and fourth, leadership. Those girls who achieve the honor of being in the last group are those who bave passed the requirements of the other three, and their duties are to assist the faculty adviser in organizing and supervising the other groups.

Those girls who went on the outings this term are as follows: Bernadine Samins, Helen Perkins, Nettie Jean Ross, Evelyn Lindsey, Marilyn Casler, Lois Cruger, Mary Wilson, Dorothy Moore, Elaine Morris, Eleanor Groom, Ellen Freed, Geraldine Hansen, Frances Wilmot, Marjorie Sabiston, Louise Gibson, Violet McKelvy, Betty Lair, Violet Sibley, Virginia Jones, Eleanor Esplin, Zelina Kienholz, Helen Montague, Margaret Kestler, Ethel Van Liew, Marie Schinzel, Cora Hughart, Mary Stimpert and Grace Kirkpatrick.

RECREATION

This year, as last, ping pong was the favorite during recreation hour which was held every Monday after school beginning Nov. 9. Since cold weather had limited outdoor activities, recreation hour was greeted with an unusual response this year, the average attendance during the latter part of the semester being between 200 and 250 students.

As a result of a ping pong tournament held among the students, a team was chosen to represent North Central in gaines with other schools. Besides ping pong, the students played anagrams, checkers, and monopoly, a new game introduced this semester. During the latter part of the term the usual checker tournament was held.

Gertrude Schoening was the Girls' League chairman for recreation hour and Richard Borton held the same position for the Boys' Federation. Mr. Ernest Hix was the faculty adviser.

GIRLS GYM ASSISTANTS

Those girls who earned their League points in the P. E. department either are active in one or more of the various sports or spend part of their time each week in helping Miss Elsa Pinkbam and Miss Catherine Dittebrandt in the girls' gym department.

Margaret Kestler, the head of this department, has been active in sports ever since she entered North Central, and last semester was student assistant in the department. She ably directed her various committees who did their work in an excellent manner. Margaret is a Senior B and will probably be very active in sports next semester.

BOYS' DANCING CLASSES

This semester Miss Elsa Pinkham condueted social dancing classes in which she taught the boys the correct etiquette for dances and the fundamental sleps for all social dancing.

The girls received much of the same instructions in their various gym classes, and many of the more experienced dancers helped Miss Pinkham by acting as partners for the boys. Jean Travis was student chairman, assisted by Marjoric Hanson, Grace Pentz and Beverly McDonald.

and Clark. Sinett of the Tigers crossed the line in sixth position. Mel Goldsmith, brother to Theron, and a runner expected to make a good showing in the event was injured prior to the meet and was unable to compete. The same was true of Orv Lopp, North Central speedster, who won the race last year.

The time for the race was 7:10.5, two seconds short of the record for this event. Time last year was 7:25.

First eleven runners and the position in which they finished were: Wade, L. C.; Goldsmith, N. C.; Nicholson, L. C.; Meyers, L. C.; Gaylord, L. C.; Sinett, L. C.; Anderson, N.C.; Mathew, L. C.; Morgan, N. C.; Schwarz, N. C.; Snedden, N. C.

INTERCLASS CROSS COUNTRY

Theron and Melvin Goldsmith, brothers, breezed across the finish line at the same instant in interclass cross country on Tuesday, Oct. 20, over the Mission course. Time for the race was 7:43 over a mile and a half. Both boys are juniors.

The annual trek was dominated by juniors and sophomores. J. Wesley Taylor, coach of this activity, stated that time for the race was as good as could be expected, and also that it was very extraordinary for such a long race to end in a dead heat, made more strange by the fact that the tie for first was between brothers. Six juniors and six sophomores finished among the first twenty. The first ten finished in the following order:

NOVICE CROSS COUNTRY

Charles Moore, sophomore A, broke the tape first in the annual novice race over the Stevens-York course, Monday, Oct. 12. His time was 5:58. Darwin Morgan, senior B raced across in second, and Bob Johnson, sophomore B, and Fred Schwartz, junior B, won third and fourth places respectively.

This race is for cross country men who have never won a letter in that sport. A fine

AND THREW IT OUT THE WINDOW

She bent over, a sharp knife grasped in her trembling hand. Tears formed in her eyes as she leaned closer and the knife all but reached its unconscious victim. Closer—closer—suddenly the woman straightened her back. With tears streaming down her cheeks she moaned, "I can't do it, I can't do it," and threw the pan of half peeled onions out the window.

Mr. Hix: You say you have found the connecting link between the animal and the vegetable kingdom?

Billie Stearns: Yes. Hix: Well, what is it? Billie: Stew!

Would you say that tallness and shortness were merely a matter of feet?

THE NORTH CENTRAL NEWS

The North Central News, one of the most cutstanding and successful of school projects, began its publications September 25, 1917, under the direction of Ernest E. Green, who is now business adviser and head of the North Central print shop. At that time the paper was a five column monthly issue. Later the size was changed to its present form, a seven column paper, and is now issued every week.

The News has done much towards keeping North Central up to the standard it has attained. By lending itself to every worthwhile school interest, such as the class play, operetta and all athleties, it helps to arouse interest to a greater degree.

This semester the staff has published eighteen issues of The News, two of which were special editions including an eight page Thanksgiving football issue and a Christmas issue.

Other honors were received in contests sponsored by the National Scholastic Press association, Sigma Delta Chihonorary Journalistic society of the University of Washington and the Columbia Scholastic Press association.

Mr. Frazier: Ob sure, we figure he is too young and careless to be trusted as a pedestrian.

Clarence Howard: It's a great old world after all, isn't it?

Walter Hunt: Yeh, but the worst of it is, there's mighty few of us that will get out alive.

Jim Ferguson: Will you please explain to me the difference between shillings and pence?

L. Ferrante: You can walk down the street without shillings.

SAVINGS

Banks find savings a problem these days, It is difficult to find suitable investments which will yield enough to cover expenses and allow interest to depositors.

However, we have always encouraged saving, because we believe it is a good thing for the people of this community to set aside a part of their earnings for future spending and to build up a reserve fund for any emergency.
